WHAT ARE THE OPEN AIR SUMMER CINEMAS IN CÓRDOBA (SPAIN)?

The open air summer cinemas in Córdoba (Spain) are traditional open-air venues located in old courtyards in the historic district. Originating in the early 20th century, they allow people to watch movies during the hot summer nights. It is a popular tradition and part of the city's cultural history.

The SOS Coordinador Summer Cinema is fighting for their survival.

WHO ARE WE?

The SOS Coordinador Summer Cinema is a nonprofit organization with a single, specific purpose: to keep Spain's oldest open air summer cinemas alive. Due to the complete lack of interest from public institutions, three of these theaters have closed and are at risk of disappearing. We are thousands of people desperate to preserve a part of our identity, way of life, and culture.

We are doing everything in our power to save this aspect of Córdoba—a summer tradition that is welcoming, essential, accessible, enriching, cultural, and deeply rooted in the local community.

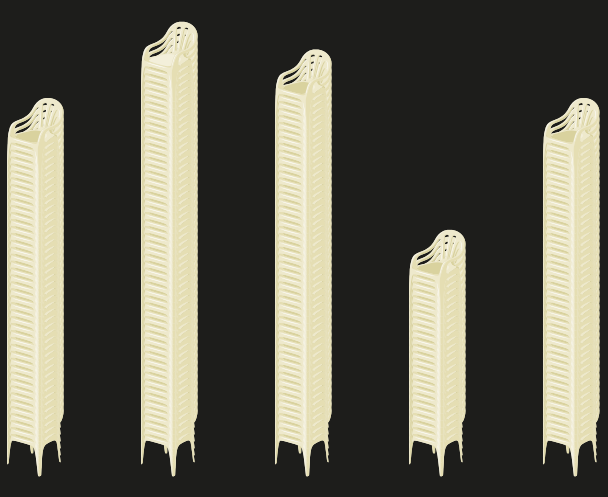

WHAT DO WE DO?

We're joining forces as citizens: together, our voices are louder, and above all, we generate a very powerful capacity to take action. Thanks to everyone who supports us and participates in some way, we have access to expertise in administration, the legal system, strategy, journalism, history, anthropology, sociology, and creativity…

Together, we have all the resources necessary to achieve our goal: to get the open air summer cinemas to reopen and ensure they are protected.

HOW DO WE DO IT?

We bring together all the knowledge at our disposal to put it to good use:

We carry out research to take action and complete the necessary administrative procedures to save the cinemas.

We devise strategies to secure their official recognition and restoration.

We publicly denounce the neglect and indifference of the authorities.

We organise awareness-raising campaigns.
